100 Behavioral Questions You Need to Know
If you’ve ever sat through an interview, you probably know what a behavioral question is, even if you’re not familiar with the term. It’s any question that asks for an example from your experience, usually starting in the following way:

- Tell me about a time when...
- Give me an example of...
- Describe a situation when...

There’s an infinite number of behavioral interview questions, so you can’t script specific answers out ahead of time. That’s why you need a repeatable strategy to answer these questions on the spot.

The P.A.R.T. Strategy

Use the acronym P.A.R.T. to structure a perfect response to any behavioral interview question:

P. (Problem) - Identify the problem, relevant to the question.

A. (Action) - What action did you take to resolve the problem?

R. (Result) - What was the positive result of your action.

T. (Takeaway) - What did you learn from this experience?

The P.A.R.T. strategy helps you talk about any experience—even a negative experience or a past failure—in a positive way.

Try It Out!

The following list includes 100 sample behavioral interview questions, organized by general topic. Try using the P.A.R.T. strategy to respond to these questions. Make sure your answers are as concise and positive as possible. Good luck!
